iv - The Plato’s Academy Digital Museum first opened in 2015. It’s a small building, located just outside the Plato’s Academy Park, and beside the local square hosting a bust of Plato (map). Unfortunately, over time, it’s been targeted by vandals, who have broken the windows, damaged the building, and daubed it in graffiti. By visiting it, though, if you get a chance, you’re helping to support the local community, and celebrate the history of philosophy in Athens.
